

[From the N. Y. Evening Post.]

The Courier of this morning has a frantic attack on Mr. Cambreleng, whose crime is that he has assisted in bringing to light the transactions of that journal with the Bank of the United States. The wholesale abuse it now bestows upon our able representative, contrasts somewhat curiously with the wholesale praises it has formerly bestowed upon him, and is likely to do him quite as much good.