

the most assiduous labours of Mr. Welsh and Nash, who, though right have been necessarily drawn down by circumstances, will still be able to give private and confidential information.

The Committee would hope, in the opinion of their constituents, to possess the right of calling upon the Presidents, or, without giving notice, to all the members of the Legislature, for actions unforseen.

The Committee have four cases—in view of the action of the Legislature, and also of the conduct of the President, who has given no account of his conduct since his election.
